

Juan Quinones serves as a Contracting Officer at the Department of Veterans Affairs, Technology Acquisition Center (TAC) where he focuses primarily on procurements for information technology products and services, and specializes in innovatively procuring digital services. He has experience supporting procurements for mobile application and platform development, and Application Programming Interface development. Prior to the TAC Juan was a Contract Specialist at the Army Communications-Electronics Life Cycle Management Command located at Fort Monmouth. Juan received a Bachelor's Degree in Economics from Rutgers University and a Master of Business Administration from Monmouth University. He has been with the TAC for eight years and holds a Level III Federal Acquisition Certification in Contracting.