

Stephanie Fugate is currently Chief of the Office of Acquisition and Assistance Professional Development and Training division where developing and supporting USAID's acquisition and assistance (A&A) workforce worldwide through training and education on all aspects of A&A. Her role also encompasses coordinating the Agency's A&A Lab where she continues to collaborate throughout the Agency to advance its mission through A&A workforce development and testing and scaling of innovations in Acquisition and Assistance. She was previously the Branch Chief/Supervisory Contracting Officer with the Special Initiatives and Development Partners (M/OAA/SIDP) division which included supporting the USAID Global Development Lab, Bureau of Policy, Planning and Learning (USAID/PPL) and other special initiatives such as USAID's Grand Challenges.

Ms. Fugate has worked in the international development field for over 15 years in both the public and private sector. She previously served as an Agreement/Contracting Officer with USAID's Bureau of Democracy, Conflict, and Humanitarian Assistance (DCHA) working with the Democracy and Governance (DCHA/DRG) and Conflict Mitigation and Management (DCHA/CMM) portfolios, held Contracting and Program Officer roles within the U.S. Department of Treasury's Procurement Services/International Programs and Office of Technical Assistance (OTA)/Revenue Administration and Policy team (Africa and the Caribbean regions), and prior to that worked in the private sector as a Business Development Manager for Chemonics International Inc.'s Africa region.

Ms. Fugate holds a Bachelor's degree in International Studies from the University of Missouri-Columbia and a Master's degree in International Commerce and Policy from George Mason University.